

Global Union - Country Overview

Accession is tied to three existing, independent indices: the Democracy Index, the Corruption Perceptions Index, and the Human Rights Index. The levels are arbitrarily chosen, but deliberately so that the EU can join as a bloc. Countries close to the threshold can still be assessed on request. Three countries receive separate treatment: the United States and Israel numerically meet the standard, but accession is not on the table for now, since a genuine commitment to our values cannot be expected under the current administrations. Taiwan also qualifies, but lacks UN-recognised status; for this we can work with a separate status, as is already the case at the WTO.
